

Radiologic Science

Radiologic Science – Application Instructions for Junior Transfers

Thank you for your interest in the Radiologic Science (BSRS) program at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. The BSRS program will prepare you for entry into the medical imaging segment of health care. Our graduates continue in rewarding careers in a wide variety of positions and healthcare settings. We look forward to receiving your application and talking with you about the exciting field of radiologic science.

Admission Requirements

Students typically enter the Radiologic Science program after completing general education requirements and prerequisite courses. Successful completion of the prerequisite courses listed under the major does not guarantee admission to the program.

BSRS students are selected on the basis of science and math prerequisite course GPA, overall GPA, quality of written application, oral and written interviews, and recommendations. Students with an overall grade point average less than 2.5 cannot be considered for admission to the UNC BSRS program. Students who already have a baccalaureate degree and have the BSRS prerequisite courses may apply for admission to the program and request a second baccalaureate degree from UNC.

Deadlines

Completed applications received by December 1, 2021 will receive first consideration. Following this deadline, the remainder of the class not filled will be considered as rolling admission throughout the spring semester. The deadline for submitting your Common Application, Supplement, and fee to the Office of Undergraduate Admissions is February 15, 2022. If you want to be considered for admission after this deadline, please contact Radiologic Science at (919) 966-5146.

Application Instructions

To apply for admission, follow these steps:

- Go to the Common Application to create an account and start your application.
- Submit the Common Application, the Common Application supplement, and application fee by one of the deadlines above.
- Upload the essays requested in your Common Application supplement.
- Submit official transcripts from all secondary and post-secondary schools to:
